MARKDOWN RESUME BUILDER

- Markdown Resume Builder Side Project by Jeff Cui
  Suggestions Welcome Jeff Cui, 2019

  Resume format based on https://github.com/sb2nov/resume. Built with Python, Flask, Pandoc, LaTeX, etc. I built this because I didn't want to format my resumes. `https://xkcd.com/1319/`
- Generated resumes are MIT licensed (free use without liability or warranty)
  - Free for personal/commercial use, distribution, modification
  - No liability
  - No warranty

USAGE

- A Lone Subheading Like This.

- A Subheading with Details Like Location
  And Position And Date

  Some optional description here. You can put anything in the four boxes above.
  - An item. This is the lowest level it goes (3 levels) because more levels don't display well in a resume.
  - An Item Title: with some detail.
  - You can put in a LINK like this.
  - It should support Látïn çharacters and 中文. If it breaks, please let me know.
  - It should save your resume draft in your browser every time you successfully convert to PDF. That said, things might break and you should copy and save the resume draft locally as well.

MARKDOWN USAGE

- This resume builder supports a limited set of markdown.
  - If you're unfamiliar with markdown, see this link: www.reddit.com/r/reddit.com/comments/6ewgt/reddit_markdown_primer_or_how_do_you_do_all_that/.
  - Generally things that looks okay in a conventional black-and-white resume like this is supported, like italics, bold font, `monospace font for code listing`, and links like this
